Dear Mr. Aesop,

I like your storybooks very much. The Boy Who Cried Wolf is my favorite one. In the story, the boy is a shepherd. He has sheep. One day, he shouted “Wolf!” to catch people’s eye. People came to help but there was no wolf at all. People were not happy about that. A few days later, the boy shouted again, and people were angry about that. A few weeks later, a wolf appeared. They boy shouted “Wolf!” to ask for help, but no one was there.

In fact, I often lied before. After I learned the story, I never did that again. Thank you for giving us these great stories.

Best regards,

Michelle
